And for years now, they have been able to import materials directly from Adobe Photoshop even at high-quality, which is all that is required for a consistent interoperability across interfaces. Photoshop itself is also part of this push to achieve a larger ecosystem of software products. In fact, Adobe has already released a nasty bug, which can cause the apps to lose access to the Photoshop logo. That was settled in a previous update. And it's also no longer an issue with the CS and CC 2018 versions of Photoshop since the Image Layers support is now significantly improved. - The Cloud service: so you can make professional images and save them to the cloud with very little effort. It automatically saves the images to the cloud and you can access them remotely or on any device you want.
