There are things I would like to see in a patch for RE6 that I will.Q: Wordpress - what's the fastest way to load a page? I've got a WordPress site running in production (for a client), and I've noticed that during an initial load it takes about 5 seconds to load the home page, especially if you are logged out. When you log in, I assume it takes about 5 seconds for a page to be loaded (and to redirect), but during that time a visitor is sitting there looking at a blank page. It's a high traffic site, so I'm trying to figure out the fastest way to improve this. I've tried a few things so far, but not really gotten anywhere. The home page uses a custom page template and has no content, so I have disabled all the page templates. The homepage has a link to a static page called "start" that redirects to the homepage, so I've got a simple redirect page (in a separate theme) on that, so I'm trying to figure out the best way to implement this. What I'm currently doing is, during the initial load of the home page, I redirect it to the "start" page. This is done via an action in my functions.php that looks something like this (which of course I'm simplifying): `if (! is_user_logged_in() ) { $args = array( 'show_home' => false, 'home' => true, 'echo' => true ); wp_redirect( site_url('start' ), $args ); exit; }` So, when I go to the homepage and press "home" - it redirects to "start" and Re: Daytona Contact Report (Feb 17) It does seem like the safety cars and then let cars go would have forced the field to race and we would have seen some good racing with caution laps/ spots. But no matter how much I'd like to see good racing, the matter of the day, safety of the drivers first comes first. I'm sure that was the thinking of the drivers and motorsport people that helped work on the new procedure. Just like the start and finish procedure, it may be a little big to figure out at the speed they race at. But if they get it perfect then it should work the same way. Re: Daytona Contact Report (Feb 17) I don't mean this as a flame, I really hope the test was not done at that speed. In that type of circumstance, the rule is an absolute bull****. The best way to do it would be to have a restart stop the cars at the track, all race cars move into a single lane, the change of direction is just on the off turn through way, everyone gets one lap to go in the opposite direction and then rejoins the line. And of course you would be restarting in the middle of the track. Re: Daytona Contact Report (Feb 17) We will see how the at Daytona is handled. It seems to me that all they have is the 'after crash' procedure to handle the situations that where passed this year 04aeff104c
