The designers paid attention to the cockpit ergonomics and safety. The interior of the car will meet European safety standards. The car will be equipped with analog-digital instruments and speed-sensitive turn indicators. The car will be also equipped with a satellite navigation system. The convertible version will include additional comfort: the soft top will be more comfortable and easy to use. The entire car including the body will be made from lightweight carbon fiber. The 2014 Porsche 911 Convertible will also include a host of environmentally friendly features, including a hybrid powertrain using a PGE. The car will also offer a variety of driver assistance features like radar adaptive cruise control, lane-keeping assist and a semi-autonomous emergency braking system. Porsche has introduced the first concept of the new 911 in Frankfurt. This is a prototype of the new flagship of the brand. The concept does not have a name and Porsche designers have focused on future technologies such as a hybrid powertrain. The vehicle is expected to begin production in early 2015. The price of the new 991 will be more than $100,000. You will receive the extraordinary experience of dining inside an 18th century church, with your own bottle of wine to enjoy with your meal. Private dining at the cellar of the Rubenshuis is an experience of a lifetime. The room is decorated in the manner of a Protestant church, with the central theme being the life of Christ. During your private dining, you will be seated at a table, which places you in the private world of Christ and the Holy Supper. Your food is prepared by the chef from a menu that is inspired by the life of Christ. The life of Christ is portrayed on the restaurant's frescoes, alongside a selection of relevant stories and anecdotes. Enjoy some gourmet food paired with a fine
